

REPLACING FACES - ERIN CASE

Erin Case is a collage artist whose striking creations are spread across the web. Featured in a vast array of online blogs and magazines, her popularity stems from a seamless ability to merge human figures with sublime landscapes and cosmic backdrops.

HOW TO DO IT

- From a hair or fashion magazine choose an image of a person
- Use a craft knife to carefully cut away all of the skin you can see
- Choose an image of a landscape to place behind the image and photograph your result
- Experiment with different images or surfaces behind your face - photograph each idea and print out your results
- You could also use Photoshop to produce work like this - use YouTube to find out how to select and cut out parts of your image

'I USUALLY SOURCE IMAGES FROM OLD MAGAZINES AND BOOKS. MOSTLY NATIONAL GEOGRAPHIC. I HAVE PILES OF THEM IN MY BEDROOM'

FURTHER RESEARCH AND KEY WORDS

Marcelo Monreal

John Stezaker

Angus Fairhurst

MARCELO MONREAL

Brazilian artist whose collage works involves digitally 'cutting open' the faces of models and celebrities to reveal beautiful flowers underneath

JOHN STEZAKER

His work is surreal in tone and is often made using collage and the appropriation of pre-existing images such as postcards, film stills, and publicity photographs.

ANGUS FAIRHURST

In his collages Fairhurst takes pages from magazines and carefully removes any human figures. He layers the pages over each other to create seemingly abstract images
